SUNY POLY

SUNY POLY

ABOUT SUNY POLY

SUNY Poly, New York's premier public polytechnic, provides an innovative and affordable higher education for students interested in science, engineering, technology, business, healthcare, and other liberal arts offerings for a well-rounded approach to experiential learning.

Our commitment to a hands-on education situates students with both the academic structure customary of undergraduate study and unique opportunities for training and cutting-edge research, ultimately providing learners an unmatched education targeted for success in our fast-changing world.

SUNY Poly students enjoy public school tuition with benefits that many small, private institutions boast, including small class sizes, individualized learning experiences, and a tight-knit community.

ABOUT THIS GUIDE

SUNY Poly is represented by a collection of logos and institutional marks, which together form the University's brand identity.

This guide is designed to assist both internal departments and external vendors in the proper use of SUNY Poly's logos. It aims to ensure consistent application across various platforms. This guide details official usage of SUNY Poly assets and the reproduction of its visual identity and design standards.

All logos and artwork featured in this guide are trademarks of SUNY Polytechnic Institute. Unauthorized use without the University's consent is strictly prohibited.

For further information about SUNY Poly's brand identity or specific inquiries regarding its use, please see the Office of Marketing and Communications website at: sunypoly.edu/communications-marketing/branding.

Official University Seal

The official university seal was redesigned in 2024 to reflect the institution's evolution, and its interdisciplinary strengths. This update removes elements historically associated with the College of Nanoscale Science and Engineering (CNSE), which is now part of the University at Albany. The changes mark an important step in aligning SUNY Poly's visual identity with its current mission and values.

The updated seal includes imagery of New York State alongside a globe, symbolizing SUNY Poly's commitment to both its regional roots and its expanding global impact. The upper-left quadrant now features a strand of DNA, representing the integration of science with technology, and healthcare with humanity that defines the institution's innovative approach to education and research.

Moreover, the new seal removes college-specific elements in favor of symbols that represent the university as a whole.

The use of the seal exclusively is limited. It is used for events and materials of a ceremonial nature or official activity by the president, leadership, and the College Council.
